Anglophone Travellers in Portugal

Permanent URI for this collection <https://cetapsrepository.letras.up.pt/id/cetaps/113865>

Since the 1980 decade, almost 200 anglophone written accounts related to travelling to and around Portugal have been read, annotated, and organised. This close reading methodology resulted in the Anglophone travellers in Portugal database, which gathers an unprecedented and heterogeneous collection of foreign perspectives on Portuguese history, culture, and society, from the 18th to the 20th century.

dc.description.abstract Ernst Haeckel foi um zoólogo e evolucionista alemão, ávido defensor do darwinismo, que propôs novas noções sobre a descendência evolutiva dos seres humanos. Declarou que a ontogénese (a embriologia e o desenvolvimento do indivíduo) recapitulava, ou repetia, de forma breve e por vezes incompleta, a filogenia (a história do desenvolvimento da espécie ou raça).

Welcome to the ARUS Digital Repository of the University of Porto.

With over 20,000 entries compiled by Lyman Tower Sargent, this already is the major resource of critical bibliography on utopia, but we expect it to grow with your contribution. Our aim is to have a complete list of critical sources in any language, add digital objects such as abstracts and full texts, and make the database searchable by subject.
